

The Zurich Flat

by Formvision

The atmosphere of the kitchen, as well as the dining room, is inviting and cosy. It is rich in decorative pieces, small golden details and is decorated in a holiday spirit. While maintaining the snug feeling and warmth, the space is clean and practical, abundant in built-in elements that make the home perfect for everyday use and celebratory evenings. The design of the dining table is reduced, minimalistic, and adaptable to different occasions, variations in the guest numbers, energy and ambient.

The vast spaces of this flat are accentuated by the use of achromatic tones, that are by nature cold and muted. The warm atmosphere seen in the photographs is achieved by using different types of luminous Flos designer lighting.

As centuries of dreary dark winter in Switzerland is of no uncommonness, the style is captured in the balanced use of space and ambient light. The luxury of these spaces is not reflected in over-the-top gold and splendor. It is rooted in the values that simplicity brings to us, and the celebration of small, everyday moments like those with our family in the kitchen, dining room, or living room.

The real luxury lies in soaking in the pleasure of spending free time in well-defined spaces that relax the onlooker on sight. The combination of practicality, luxury, and comfort is leisure, and it is exactly what this flat is all about. Appreciating enchanting chilly evenings and fresh mornings by the fireplace while feeling in touch with nature, your loved ones, and yourself is just what the design of the living room achieves- making the resident appreciate the beauty of family life.

The smell of cinnamon and vanilla, the feeling of a warm blanket on a cold December night. Heat on the cheeks coming from the burning fireplace in a serenely clean space, illuminated by candles. The Zurich Flat is accommodated for the snowy days, being set in the beautiful country of Sweden, surrounded by pine trees, mountains and wrapped in cold climate.

Finally, the art pieces that add artistic value are from Danijela Gruban's entropy collection, blending in with the grey colour scheme lit up by scented candles and recessed lights. The materials of leather, stone, steel, and glass create a simple yet effective look, a mix of tradition and modernity, bringing balance to the front. The harmony achieved in the design is the reflection of the residents' inner peace, working according to their needs and meeting all the standards that make a space one's home.

-written by Nina Gruban